The Big Man contemplates his golfing woes

Over the course of 24 tours, some truly awful golf has been played. Hursty's 4 point round needs no further introduction but there have been numerous other terrible rounds and Shitzu awards deservedly won.

But when it comes to the consideration of consistently horrendous golf over the course of a single tour, that accolade goes (perhaps surprisingly) to BDT 2004 winner, Big Buzz. In the Big Man's defence, he was struggling with back issues at the time, but those who played with Buzz on BDT 2013 will recall some pretty horrific scoring!

There was an inauspicious start in Round I as Buzz scored 15 points and lost 7&5 with Boggy against Oli G and Gav. He was looking to bounce back in the Round II fourballs at Los Flamingos, being partnered with DT against Robbo and Paddy.

In previous years the DT & Buzz partnership had been one to fear, and pre-match banter the night before was plentiful, with Buzz regularly telling all and sundry that they were going to smash the Retrievers. Sadly, the Big Man's confidence proved to be misplaced.

On the course Buzz was spraying it and I recall standing on probably the 10th tee being 3 or 4 UP with the Bloodhounds seriously on the ropes. "Come on Buzz, let's get in the game now" was DT's plea as the Big Man made his way to the tee.

Freezemaster, Smack - cue one of the biggest duck hooks I have ever witnessed (followed swiftly by a "Shot Buzz" from Robbo)! The ball sailed miles left into a vast woodland, so deeply embedded that it was not even worth a wander to search for it. Reload, Freezemaster, Smack - an overcorrection and this time the ball veered 45 degrees right into a large lake (with Robbo again following up with a "Shot Buzz"). There must have been at least 350 yards between the two balls!

DT managed to single-handedly prolong the agony until the 15th where we shook hands 5&3 and not long afterwards the Big Man looked truly brow-beaten come the end of his round after a 12 pointer. Alas, things did not improve much in Round III which was a 16 point round and poor Buzz could only muster 43 points over his three rounds, an unwanted tour record that stands to this day.

They say that all records are there to be broken and I daresay that no-one will make too much of this one for fear of cursing themselves! Thankfully, that has proven to be his nadir; Buzz has since regrouped and to his immense credit actually challenged for the Green Jacket just two tours later in Malmö, scoring 109 points only to lose to Oli D's remarkable 112 point total. It's a funny old game.

A memory of Round II of Buzz's tour comes with this video which demonstrates that the Big Man's putting game was not quite where it needed to be – the classic moment being that the distance the ball flies past the hole indicates the putt must have been a 40 footer but then Buzz appears in frame a split second later!

The Big Man talks us through the experience from his perspective:

BUZZ

"When casting my mind back over the various tours I have participated in, there are actually not that many moments I would want to forget! This is something I'm sure all of the Dogs will relate to. Upon closer scrutiny, however, it's really a toss up between four contenders as follows:

1) Being selected as the Monkey's brother in "Guess The Brothers" game;

2) 2013 - Round I;

3) 2013 - Round II; and

4) 2013 - Round III.

Only joking Hursty, clearly this is a very easy one for me and it has to be my golfing exploits in Marbella in 2013!

In preparation for tour my golf had been a little scant to say the least which was in hindsight a foolish decision particularly being the reigning Shitzu Champion (albeit in an incomplete tour)!

My confidence was, however, good which was well demonstrated by the carefully selected 'smash' attire laid out on my bed prior to packing (night one, night 2, night 3 and night 4) not realising, I needn't have bothered as my clothing would be compulsory and the same every night.

Furthermore my chat to Robbo on the plane, clearly misplaced, suggesting that my game was in good shape and there was zero chance of being back to back Shitzu.

On Round I myself & Neil took on Oli & Gav and lost 7&5. I'd love to say we were unlucky but when totting up my points that would be a hard one to explain. Total 15 points. Not ideal I thought, we have all had bad days, take the positives, it can't get any worse.

Those thoughts went straight out of the window after Round II with 12 points, good. A round that had DT giving me a bit of a lesson on the 2nd after a shank into the woods and Robbo and Paddy having a good laugh about it plus me playing the wrong ball at some point during the round wasn't conducive to good scoring.

Then to the Singles against Harbo off 4, who by all accounts had been flushing everything on Rounds I and II. This didn't bode well. Thankfully the intervention of a heavy night out in the port and some Stella Miguels on the course (for Harbo not me) and my best round that tour (which isn't saying much) amassing a humongous 16 points resulted in only a loss 4&3. Not as bad as it could have been.

Three rounds of golf I would happily forget!”
