Marrakech Mayhem

Picture the scene: Marrakech 2025, 24 Dogs all absolutely flying in a seriously swanky club. The place was jam-packed but one particular Steve caught our attention as he swanned over, c*ck of the walk, to the VIP area, linen trousers on, surrounded by women.

The VIP area was at eye-level above the dancefloor and so if you turned around and looked up you were basically staring at Steve's knees.

We've all done a bit of podium dancing in our time, particularly Langers, but this dude was taking it to another level entirely, looking out over the dancefloor as though it was his empire, swaying to the tunes and his Billy-Big-B*llocks behaviour was standing out like a sore thumb. He had the swagger (or thought he did), was immaculately presented, guns on show, slicked-back hair, gleaming white teeth – he could have walked straight off the set of Love Island or The Only Way Is Essex.

After watching this performance for a little while, Ravo announced (quite reasonably) that “this guy needs bringing down a peg or two!”. A man of action and not just words Ravo decided to prove the point! He reached up, grabbed Steve's linen trousers and dropped them, exposing his silky underwear!

Everyone around, including Steve's mates, p!ssed themselves but Steve was not impressed! He made a colossal fuss and all hell broke loose at this point! Cutting a long story short, Ravo somehow smooth-talked the bouncers into letting him stay in the Club! Steve, however, had come crashing back down to earth – lesson learnt: stay humble!
